$1,000 Learn Between the Lines Scholarship Slam, D: July 11, 2018

Selected criteria: “April is National Poetry Month — the largest literary celebration in the whole world (!) — and a time when people from all walks of life unite to celebrate the impact poetry has had on them. Through reading and writing poetry we are able to learn new things about ourselves, each other, and the world around us.

What is something that poetry has taught you?

Did writing a poem about a problem actually help you solve it? Have you learned something new about a friend by stepping into their shoes and writing a poem from their perspective? Maybe you read a poem that changed your life and set you on a new path? Tell us in a poem about what poetry has taught you for your chance to win.

Note: This is a sweepstakes scholarship. That means a winner will be chosen from a random drawing.

ELIGIBILITY

The basic requirements are this: (1) you are 25 years of age (or younger), and (2) you are a current or former high school student who will attend or is attending college within the U.S. or its territories.

Add an original poem to Power Poetry by Wednesday, July 11, 2018. You'll need to register as a member of our community first.”

Notice, this won't be a judgement on the quality of your poem, but once you become a member of the community and add an original poem, you might “be chosen from a random drawing.”

Where I found these:

<http://time.com/money/4838938/college-scholarships/>

I found these two scholarships, The $1,000 Delete Cyberbullying Scholarship and the $1,000 and Learn Between the Lines Scholarship Slam, from the article, “The Biggest and Best College Scholarships Available,” by Sergei Klebnikov, written on July 10, 2017. Since some of the links were out of date, I had to see if any new scholarships were offered at the websites.

I googled the following terms to find the above article: large scholarships for 2018 entering freshmen.

There were several links under these search results. I tell you all this in case you want to explore other possible scholarships and do your own research.
